SPEECH

Speech is the expression of or the ability to express thoughts and feelings by articulate sounds.

There are certain critical aspects of a speech:

- There are many crucial factors that one has to keep in mind most important being understanding the audience and altering it to connect to the audience.
- Having comprehensive knowledge of topic and dividing the content into sub parts is important.
- There should be proper transitions and appropriate pauses, tone and speech styles.
- Using senses all senses of the audience can lead to a good impact and help them relate better.
- Appropriate tools or aids should be used if the for reaching to a larger audience.
- Speech should be practised and properly times.
- Key to a good speech is practice and being adaptable i.e. being ready for the unknown and taking precautionary measures for whatever difficulty might occur.
- Backup plans should be in place.
- Summary and highlights along with keynotes should be circulated to get a meaningful feedback.

Disability
in mindset!

SPEECH (14th Image)

What is the first thing that comes to your mind when you hear the word disability?

The first thing that comes to my mind is a question of what does this word mean or what is the context we are talking about. There might be someone from us who are visualizing a scenario or someone associating this word with people or objects. There might be more varying answers and there is no right or wrong answer all these are perceptions. But what is most important to understand that what does this word mean? The word is made of combination of two words dis and ability. Ability is the resource to perform well at something and when we prefix it with dis it becomes disability and it means limits or challenges a person faces. It's not just a word we associate with people having special needs but it's something that anyone of us can face. If I have to associate this word people, I will associate it with someone whose circumstances limit them from dreaming or having goals, or with someone who has stopped trying, someone who is not trying to find solutions or ways and this someone can be any of us. And this is not just a word associated with people or objects but can be associated with society as well and this reminds me of a powerful quote by Robert M. Hensel.

"There is no greater disability in society than the inability to see a person as more."

Let us all have an open mind and give everyone another chance. A chance to rise a chance to try again! Let us together aid this disability of our society!

Last but not the least most important thing we need to acknowledge is the fact that our current state or resources does not limit us to reach our goal but rather it just gives us a different start point or a different road which might not be travelled much and we can find ways and we can ~~per~~ even pave our own paths and reach our goals!
